TWO IN JAIL FOR MURDER OF WALVIG

FIND BODY IN WOODS

Through the repeated confession and admission of the baffling mystery of the fate of Randolph Walwig of Beloit, who disappeared April eight last, was traced up when the corpse of Walwig was found buried at the farm of Andrew Gunderson, nine miles west of Beloit, last night. Fowler in his latest confession today told the jury he had gone with a Beloit man named Earl Reynolds planned to hold up Walwig near Beloit. The steal from him $300 and the money was put in a new automobile. Fowler admitted that he received one hundred dollars and the automobile in his share and that they planned to go to Chicago that they planned murder Walvig. He denied having any gun or that he knew Reynolds had one. He constantly changed his story of the crime, misstating facts, misconstruing statements, and before the day is over will make a full confession to the authorities. Each confession, the detectives state, comes nearer to what they believe the truth of the crime.

He is very nervous today, after the trying ordeal during the last two days, when he has been constantly sweated and cross-examined by the authorities. Before the day is over he alone is killed.

Confesses in Cell.

Nine days ago B. L. Powe, a detective of the Russell Agency of Milwaukee, was locked with Fowler in the cell. He was to be a prisoner. He resorted examined there was a blood clot in part of his body, which would indicate that the man had been struck on an unconscious condition. The importance of this fact, that Fowler, was taken to the cells, constantly talked about a story of kicking a man. Little by little, details of the story were dragged out from the reluctant prisoner until Fowler admitted he knew who shot and killed Walvo. Then the climax came Monday afternoon when he confessed that he had killed Walvig and that he had buried the body on the Gundersen farm.

Inquest Today.

This morning Earl Reynolds, the loit youth who was formerly an auxiliary member of the Beloit Police Department, was arraigned in the Beloit Municipal Court charged with complicity in the murder of Walwick, based upon the confession of Fowler. He was held for trial without bail and brought to Janesville on the Indianapolis car and locked up in the jail.

IMPOSSIBLE FOOD FOUND IN MEXICO

American Troopers Could Not Subsist on Native Supplies.

If the American soldiers had been forced to live on "the fat of the land" while on their punitive expedition into Mexico, they would have found it decidedly lean and would have had occasion to complain bitterly of the commissary, for although the neighboring republic has within its borders an extraordinary variety of food products, including most of the vegetables, fruits and cereals grown in both the temperate zone and the tropics, there is neither variety nor abundance in its northern varieties. A bulletin on culinary practices in the southern republic, issued by the National Geographic society in Washington, says:

"Since the day of the Montezumas, Mexico's staple of life has been the corn, which is indigenous to the country. The preparation of the tortilla is the work of the Indian women, who first boil the grain and then, while adding water, grind it to a stiff paste on a metate, or flat mortar. This paste usually is moulded with the hands into thin cakes, the fashion of the 'hoo cake' of Dixie-land.

"The frijole, or Mexican bean, frequently fried in fat, is another staple which when served alone and when constituting an important ingredient of the famous chile con carne, a sort of soup, compounded customarily of beef and beans, with a plentiful seasoning of chili, the Mexican pepper. The hot tamale has made its way across the border, but it does not have the same flavor when taken from a can as when the particles of meat are seasoned with pepper, mixed with corn meal, wrapped in corn 'shucks', boiled until thoroughly cooked, peeled out of the husk and eaten from the shuck. One of the odd dishes of northern Mexico is the pipian, made of finely ground squash seed, boiled in a sauce pan.

While the tortillas, frijoles, chile con carne, and tamales, washed down with liberal portions of pulque, may be considered the foundation of the menu, the peas of southern Mexico has various appetizers which are unknown to the people of the north. There is, for example, the 'water wheat', which is not exactly what its name implies, but the eggs of lies. The native Mexican eats his water wheat with the same epicurean relish that the Chinese mandarin eats his expensive bird-nest, the Central African his raw hippopotamus, the Canton merchant his stilled dog, and the West Indian his palm worms stewed in fat. The water-wheat fields are ponds a few feet apart, so that their tops are just above the surface. On these reeds or rushes the insects deposit their eggs in inchable numbers. The bunch is shaken off. The eggs, resembling fine fish-roe, are made into small cakes and are sold in the markets, to be eaten either as a snack or mixed with corn meal and fowl eggs. The insects themselves, which are about the size of our houseflies, are also eaten, the method of preparation being to pound them into a paste and boil with corn husks.

"The fruits of southern Mexico are numerous and some of them are delicious. One of the most unusual is the papaya or melon zapote, which grows on a tree and often weighs as much as 20 pounds. It has characteristics which link it to the cantaloupe, the pumpkin and the watermelon, and in addition contains considerable papain, so that the diner may take his aid to digestion and his dessert in one and the same time. The papaya fruit is peculiar chiefly on account of its striking resemblance to the green parakeets which are to be found in Mexico. These little birds frequently elude hawks by perching among the fruit, from which they are almost indistinguishable.

"The traveler who plucks fruit from the arbol of diana, and stows it away in his suitcase will be startled to hear a loud explosion in a short time, as the product of the aptly named dynamite tree detonates whenever it is placed in a warm spot.

"The Tarahumara Indians, who are especially fond of fish, frequently organize community fishing parties which last several days. On these occasions they find it impractical to depend on their crude traps and thorn-pointed spears, so they make a fish poison by crushing the leaves of two varieties of the magnolia plant. These leaves are thrown into a stream which has been dammed and the following morning the fish, some merely stupefied and others already dead, are easily gathered. The poison, fortunately, is not of a character to affect human beings. Tadpoles, larvae and water beetles are other aquatic delicacies dear to the Tarahumara palate.

Lovers of chocolate bonbons and drinkers of cocoa are indebted to the ancient Mexicans for the cacao bean. Another variety of bean from tropical Mexico is the vanilla, which grows on a climbing orchid.

PREPARE CORN LAND AT ONCE IS ADVICE TO CONTEST BOYS

Ground Should Not Be Worked When It Is Wet, However, Prof. West Warns.

By Allen B. West.

To the Agricultural Contest Boys: The weather so far has not been very favorable for the tilling of corn ground, unless in especially favorable locations, on account of the frequent showers. As soon as it is possible to work the land, business should begin. Care must be taken, however, not to work the land too wet, especially if the soil is heavy, for the effects of such procedure will be seen throughout the season, sometimes even longer. Land should never be plowed or worked when it is too wet to pulverize from.

It is the practice of many farmers to leave the preparation of the corn ground until just before planting time. This is a mistake. The more the ground is worked before the corn is planted the less it will need after the corn is in; and the experiments of recent years show that the corn sown in corn without some injury to the plant. Of course this injury is more than compensated for by the advantage there is derived from the conservation of moisture and the killing of the weeds. If the weeds kept down without the cultivation after planting, the result would be much increased. It is possible to do a great deal of this work by working the land before planting, and for this reason progressive farmers are getting more ground ready as early as possible so that it may be cultivated before planting. "It is a true saying," says Purdue University Bulletin, "that the farmer who plows to insure a good corn crop by thorough soil preparation before planting, than by any amount of later cultivation."

As was stated last week, spring plowed ground should always be dragged or harrowed at once to prevent the formation of clods and the loss of moisture. The plow should be drawn as early as possible to conserve the moisture for fall plowing and will dry out quicker than improved land. If the ground is not plowed early, the moisture will be lost. The soil should be treated the same as advised for spring plowing, i. e., disked and harrowed once a week until the leaves of the corn are a week old. U. S. Farmers' Bulletin 537, gives this additional advice: "Where a heavy growth of clover or weeds or other vegetation is present, the land should be given just previous to planting, a cultivation as deep as it was plowed. After cultivation the soil is of more value than any other cultivation the corn crop can be given. It is economical, because wider and more horses can be employed and it is possible after the corn is planted."

The object of all this harrowing, disk and cultivating before the corn is in is to insure a fine seed bed. Early cultivation has this effect upon the soil, while later cultivation tends to cool it, which is another item in favor of cultivating before planting.

Second, it permits the destruction of weeds. The early working of the soil as it does, the early germination of the seeds, the resulting plants being destroyed by the subsequent harrowing, before the corn is planted. Third, the soil in moisture. Fourth, it puts the corn in such condition as to make the plant stand in the soil more readily available to the corn plant.

If the ground has been thoroughly prepared before the corn is planted, much less cultivation will be required to keep the weeds down after planting. It will be to keep the ground from baking after rains. So boys, go to work as soon as it dries up to cultivate your corn.

RUSSIA'S PROHIBITION LAWS WILL BE ENFORCED AFTER THE WAR ENDS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Petrograd, May 2.—Russia will continue "dry" after the war, so far as vodka is concerned. The limited sale of beer and light wines will be permitted.

The bill for both prohibition and limitations has been introduced in the duma and its passage is assured. The czar and his advisors approve it. Finland is not included.

"It is forbidden to produce alcohol for vodka," says the bill, "or to import alcohol."

Alcohol production for mechanical and medicinal purposes is authorized except by the government. Its sale only by the government is prohibited. The order against private sale will include individuals, even when their product is for their own household consumption.

The sale of beer and light wines will be prohibited except in towns. Local councils may prohibit it also.

The government also will limit the percentage of alcohol in both beers and wines.

SELECTION OF BISHOPS AT METHODIST MEETING

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., May 2.—Just where the bishops will be assigned for the next four years is a subject of keen interest at the quadrennial session of the Methodist general conference here today.

Interest centers about who will be sent to Washington as successor to Bishop Cranston. Washington and New York are the most desired locations.

It is believed the Washington 'plum' will go either to Bishop Luther D. Wilson of New York, or Bishop William Fraser McDowell of Chicago.

Bishop Wilson, however, may be reappointed to New York, where he has accomplished so much for Methodism and Bishop McDowell may go to Washington. Dr. McDowell is chancellor of the Methodist University at the capital, and he is a close friend of Bishop Cranston.

If Bishop Wilson is not returned to New York, the next incumbent likely will be Bishop McDowell or Bishop J. M. McConnell, now resident in Denver. Dr. McConnell was consecrated only four years ago. Until then he was pastor of New York avenue Church, Brooklyn.

MEERSCHAUM MATERIAL IS NOW A RARITY

If the shade of the smoker's pipe were of as much moment as the hue of his daily's spring costume, the possible shortage in the meerschaum market might have attracted as much attention in America, since the beginning of the war, as has the interruption of our airline trade with Germany, for the main source of the world's supply of this earthly mineral lies in the zone of hostilities. The National Geographic society, with headquarters in Washington, in its war geography bulletin issued today, gives the following little-known facts about the meerschaum mines of Eskisehir, the meerschaum city of 20,000 people which lies 200 miles to the south of Constantinople, on the banks of the Pursak Su, in Asia Minor.

Meerschaum, which derives its name from the fact that particles of it were discovered floating on the Black Sea, giving rise to the belief that it was a solidified sea-foam, has been found in the alluvial deposits in the plains near Eskisehir for a thousand years. Some of the meerschaum pipes, located about 18 miles from the city, have as many as 2,000 openings. Here 4,000 Kurds and Persians, in groups of from three to fifteen, burrow through the hard, white, chalky deposits of from 20 to 200 feet, working night and day under the flickering light of oil lamps. The lumps of mineral clay which they seek is commercially valuable in a dullest as small as hazel nut, while occasionally pieces as large as apples are found.

"When the meerschaum is first brought to the surface it has a grayish, bluish tinge and is so soft that it can be scraped with a knife. In the summer it is left to dry in the sun, but in the winter it is placed in ovens, where it becomes snow white and loses two-thirds of its weight. After being rubbed with a piece of polished wood, the pipe is wrapped in cotton and sent to Austria or America to be resoled in water until it is so soft that it can be cut like cheese with a knife. It is then carved if desired, and fitted with amber stems from Germany. Before the war the value of Eskisehir's meerschaum annually.

"Even the most aesthetically inclined of our American millionaires, if they saw the luxury of the meerschaum pipe, would be astonished to find that it was within the range of their fortunes, yet there are many unpretentious houses of this material in the town of Constantinople and in the Moroccan. Just across the straits of Gibraltar, the meerschaum is another variety of the meerschaum lathers freely and they use it, perhaps sparingly, as a substitute for soap.

"The chips and sawdust of the meerschaum pipe factories make an excellent cleansing powder for removing stains from costly fabrics. An inferior pipe is also made of the meerschaum, the fragments being bound together with some solution and then molded into blocks.

"Meerschaum is found in Greece and in Hunan, China, as well as in the meerschaum mines of the Balkans, in Pennsylvania, South Carolina and in the upper Gila valley, near Silver City, New Mexico."

"SAFETY FIRST" EXHIBIT STARTED BY GOVERNMENT

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Washington, May 2.—Climbing aboard a special car all-steel train, the government started out from Washington today to show his people how he provides "safety first" for them in their food, drink, homes, work and play.

F. Leopold of the Bureau of Mines, Department of the Interior, was in charge of the train. The exhibit was started by the lines of the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern railroad on the first lap of its journey. The train will first cover the trip to the westward over the trunk lines.

Exhibits from almost every bureau in the government service were on board. Models and charts from the public health service showed how disease is prevented, how food and water are watched over and how working conditions are regulated to safeguard life and health.

Devices with which the coast guard service saves life and property along the seaboard and on the great lakes were exhibited. Included were armored life boats, rapid-firing guns for throwing life lines to ships in distress, the breeches buoy and wireless outfits.

Complete exhibits of the bureau of mines of its apparatus for saving lives in the mines are also aboard. How the forest service of the department of agriculture has minimized the losses in hitherto great calamities in the vast timberlands is demonstrated. This exhibit also shows how 1,200 towns and cities are cured their water supplies from the forests, and what is being done to safeguard and prevent contamination of these water sources.

First-aid-to-the-injured devices and their application are shown under the auspices of the American Red Cross, while the interstate commerce commission has three model cars fully equipped with railway safety devices.

Millions of dollars worth of property have been saved by warnings sent out by the weather bureau. It is shown how the work of this branch of the department of agriculture, with its apparatus for determining weather conditions, is elaborately shown.

The relation of service war and navy departments also are represented.

CALIFORNIA PAROLE LAW IS SUCCESSFUL

Results As Summarized by State Parole Agent Are Most Conclusive As to Good Accomplished.

Chicago, May 2.—Results of the operation of the California state parole law are embodied in data gathered by Edward H. Whyte, of San Francisco, California, State Parole Agent, and given out for publication today. He says that if the authorities permitted publication of the names of the many paroled men who have returned their places among the reputable citizens of California the people of the state would be amazed at the fine showing and proud of the result. Among the findings of the investigation made by Mr. Whyte are the following:

A total of 3,635 prisoners in California paroled prior to January 1st of this year (1916), only 128, or 3.5 per cent, of their parolees by the commission of new crimes. Other violations, bringing the percentage of violations up to 21 per cent, consisted of breaking of some rule of the Prison Board, such as drinking intoxicating liquors, leaving place of employment without permission, and the like.

Aside from the personal good accomplished in returning several thousand bad men to law-abiding and industrially productive citizenship, probably the most important result of the California parole law is the reduction of the confirmed criminal percentage of state prisoners. Statistics covering the three decades from 1880 to 1910 show the following results:

In 1880 the percentage of confirmed criminals in California state prisons was 25.3 and the percentage of first termers was 77.3.

In 1890, the percentage of confirmed criminals had grown to 31.9, the percentage of first termers was reduced to 74.3.

In 1910, the percentage of confirmed criminals fell 18.1, while the percentage of first termers rose to 81.9.

The gradual decrease of confirmed criminals percentage still is going on at California prisons.

So far as prison management entered into this remarkable result, Mr. Whyte says there are just two causes—improved prison management and parolees.

The total earnings of prisoners while on parole up to January 1, 1916, amount to $2,015,871.02, and the savings in this period amount to $464,551, and this is held by Mr. Whyte to prove that the parole system is a success as it makes it possible to transform men who have been convicted of crimes from a cost of $200.00 a year each to industrial men, each earning for himself, on an average of $150.00 a year and to assist him with his family.

In conclusion Mr. Whyte says: "Too many are inclined to believe a sentence to a state penitentiary changes the nature of a sentenced man, and that the man loses all attributes of humanity, that forever thereafter he is a thing apart, a beast to be dreaded. Therefore, the fair treatment due a man is generally withheld from a prisoner. Experience has shown that this is a grievous error, that that this attitude has worked great harm.

"Human nature is not fundamentally changed by the bestowal of the great honors nor is a man radically changed by imprisonment. When the debt to society has been paid by the man, and he has been more fortunate to recognize the settlement and then do all in our power to encourage the unfortunate to again take his place among men."

"A convict, as such, is of no value to himself or the state. If he remains in prison too long—long enough to break his spirit and ambition—he is sure to remain a charge and menace to the state for all his life. If his hope of parole and reformation is kept up, it is a powerful incentive to good conduct and endeavor. The very many instances in which paroled prisoners have 'made good' in every sense of the term is conclusive proof of the great value and success of the parole system."

DUTCH GOVERNMENT GETS ABOUT THIRTY PERCENT OF ALL THE WAR TIME PROFITS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) The Hague, Netherlands, May 2.—

According to the War Profits Tax bill that has now reached the Dutch Parliament, 30 per cent of all Dutch profits beyond the first $300 will have to be turned over to the state.

This means that every Dutchman or Dutch company making war profits of say $2,000 will pay 30 per cent on the $1,700, or $510, into the public treasury and so on. The law is to be levied as from August 1, 1914, the increase in income being reckoned by a comparison with the twelve months preceding that date. Imprisonment penalties are provided for incorrect declarations of income and false-fraud balance sheets and books.

THE GIRL AND THE GAME ...

Copyright 1915 by Frank H. Spearman.

"Friends crowded up as the spike went home and congratulations fell thick and fast on the winners of the long-drawn struggle. Rhineland still had something to propose. "While we are all here together," he said, "we'll complete the celebration by starting the first train. I want to see who can drive a spike that will hold a rail joint for an engine to run over it. Throw the switch for the main line, George, and let Helen start the first train over the cut-off."

Storm walked toward the switch, some distance away, followed by Spike. Standing together they threw it and signaled that all was right. Helen, quite at home inside an engine cab, pulled the throttle slightly and the drivers began to revolve; the engineer then handed her carefully down from the gangway and the train started.

At the switch, Spike and Storm engaged thus intently, failed to notice two men creeping up behind them, ropes in hand. Taken unawares, nooses were thrown suddenly over their heads and before they could make the least defense, they were throttled, felled and dragged back from the switch. So swiftly and expertly was the attack made that Spike and Storm were choked almost at once and dragged down out of sight before anyone noticed their disappearance.

Tying their hands expeditiously, Ward speculated for a moment on what to do with them. Adams proposed to throw them from the bridge; he negatived. "They would find them too quick. We'll put them in the ore cars," he said cunningly. "When the cars are located at the mine the ore will do the rest."

The two picked Storm up, unconscious, and carried him along the track, laying him beside it to await the coming of the freight train. Returning to find Spike in like fashion, they were surprised and upset to find he had disappeared.

Spike had, in fact—overhearing the fate in store for him—rolled, gagged and bound as he was, along the track to the bridge below. Gaining this, he continued to roll over and tried to drop out of sight underneath. But in getting down, helpless as he was, his hands caught by the rope with which he was fastened on the head of a projecting spike and instead of dropping to where he speedily could have hidden himself, he hung quite helpless in the air suspended by his wrists.

The ore train, meantime, had come along the mine spur and Ward and Adams, watching their opportunity, flung Storm into a gondola.

"We've got to get after Spike," declared Ward, now alarmed for the safety of himself and his companion.

Indeed, Spike was having a close call for his life in more than one direction. A single slender chance gave him hope of escape. The cord with which his hands had been bound, he thought, might be saved in two on the spike against which it had caught. Acting on this thought, he threw himself from side to side to saw the cord against the iron. In spite of the intense pain suffered in sustaining the entire weight of his body on the thongs that bound his wrists, he kept desperately busy in the hope of releasing himself before his captors should return. For he had no doubt that Ward, as assistant director, would not hesitate to kill him on sight. With a resource and cunning developed through a long career of doubtful enterprises and close squeaks—Spike struggled wildly for freedom and life, and thus engaged he heard the footsteps of men running along the track.

This might mean help; it might mean a knock on the head. There was but a moment left to effect his escape. Jerking himself convulsively, arms, legs and body—the cord cutting and saving every moment into the quick around his wrists—he threw such a force on the rope that the strands finally parted on the sharp iron face and Spike dropped exhausted to the ground. But he had hardly struck it before he rolled, bounced and scrambled away into hiding.

It was none too soon. Ward and Adams, searching with sharp eyes every place of concealment, came on. Their hurry, however, was too great, and the very place where they should have looked, they passed. Even before they were well out of the way, Spike had released his feet and gaining the track was running at full speed back to where Helen was waiting, beside the Special with her friends.

These latter saw a bareheaded man dashing down the track, waving his arms.

"They've got Storm," exclaimed Spike. "They carried him off first, to throw him into an ore car. They meant to throw us both in. If they've thrown George into one of those cars, the minute it's loaded, he'll be killed!"

Helen blanched. To threaten Storm's life was to touch her heart. "We must get aboard," she cried to those about her, "and run the train up to the mine without losing a minute. Hurry," she cried, "everybody!"

Rhineland hastened the excited guests into the cars, signaled the conductor and the Special, swiftly gathering speed, started to catch the freight train at the mine.

In the gondola into which he had been flung, Storm, pounded and shaken over the rough rail joints, gradually recovered consciousness. (CONTINUED TOMORROW.)

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

BY DAISY DEAN

The career of Bruce McRae, a recent convert to the motion picture, reads like a story from a fairy book. He was born in England, but went to Australia at the age of sixteen, and there became a surveyor in the government service. He later came to America and while stationed at Fort Laramie had charge of one of the largest ranches in the world.

Perhaps the fact that he is a nephew of that sterling English actor, Sir Charles Wyndham, and of the famous dramatist, the late Bronson Howard, had something to do with his breaking into the theatrical game. He came to New York, where, through introductions from his noted uncles, he was able to secure a part in "Elsie De la Zelle" and "Forbes Robertson's" company, which was then playing "Thermidor."

His success was immediate, and since then he has seldom been out of the public view, as the long list of plays in which he has appeared will attest.

"SHOT" OIL WELL FOR "THE TOILERS." The actual shooting of a real oil well will be one of the big scenes in "The Toilers," the new multiple reel feature photoplay by Dr. Daniel Goodman, in which Nance O'Neill is starred.

The theme of "The Toilers" is described as love, oil and money. Edgar Lewis, who is directing the making of the photoplay, is an extremist in the matter of realism, and to put the aroma of petroleum into the picture, he took Miss O'Neill and her supporting principals to the Galloway oil fields near Franklin, Pa., where for two busy days were employed in unfolding the story of the camera amid shafts, derricks and tanks.

"THE MISLEADING LADY" ESSANAY

Henry B. Walthall and Edna Mayo in "The Misleading Lady," at the Beverly on Thursday.

The scene in the streets of Paris, showing the arrival of the Normandy coach with the two orphans Henriette (Theda Bara) and Louise (Jean Soth) and their mother, is a masterpiece of scenic art, costing $5,000 to build and took two weeks in its construction, being built up as solidly on the big William Fox open air stage in Jersey City as if it was destined to be a permanent structure.

The scene showing the prison of Salpetriere, the most infamous place of captivity that ever existed is equal for three days, beginning Thursday, May 4th. Censorship boards in various localities have pronounced these pictures and the accompanying lecture, educational in a high degree, interesting in the extreme and wholly devoid of reprehensible features. A majority of cases composed entirely of women, have attested the public agreement with the official verdict.

In view of the intimate nature of the subject matter portrayed by the films, and clarified by the lecture, the pictures will be shown only to women, and no one under sixteen years of age will be admitted. There will be two matinees daily, at 2:15 and 3:30, and one evening exhibition at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. L. Y. Henry, long recognized as an authority on subjects of a gynecological nature, will accompany the films during the local engagement at the Myers theatre and deliver a lecture, describing the various scenes as they are projected on the screen, pointing out the salient features characterizing the several methods of inducing painless parturition now in general use in almost every prominent hospital throughout the civilized world.

In language free from technical terms, and so simple that it may easily be grasped by the average lay mind, she will explain the urgent necessity for the application of some palliative treatment during childbirth for the highly sensitive and delicately organized women of the present civilization, answer pertinent questions, and convey information calculated to be of material benefit and genuine interest to womanhood in general, and motherhood in particular.

The claim has been made that while male quartets by long practice often reach a very high standard of ensemble perfection, that it is doubtful if any other mixed quartet in America can approach the Kellogg-Haines Singing Party in that sinking of individuality and perfect blending of voices which comprises ideal quartet work. In addition to the mixed quartet, three members of the company comprise a male trio of equal merit.

Bruce McRae.

He makes his film debut soon in a picturization of Richard Le Gallienne's "The Chain Invisible." The picture was filmed at Cienfuegos, Cuba, and is a story of the person-inflicted and cures the sufferer.

Vera Pearce is to be starred. She's a handsome girl who has posed frequently for Charles Dana Gibson, Fisher, Christy and the rest of them. She grew up in Middletown, N. Y., and has had small parts in several staged plays. In pictures she was last seen in the Bushman-Bayne play, "Man and His Soul."

Length, about two feet. One of our largest hawks; adults with tall reddish brown.

Range: Breeds in the United States, Mexico, Costa Rica, Canada and Alaska; winters generally in the United States and south to Guatemala.

Habits and economic status: The red-tailed hawk, or "hen-hawk," as it is commonly called, is one of the best known of all our birds of prey, and is a widely distributed species of great economic importance. Its habit of sitting on some prominent limb or pole in the open, or flying with measured wing beat over prairies and sparsely wooded areas on the lookout for its favorite prey, causes it to be noticed by the most indifferent observer. Although not as omnivorous as the red-shouldered hawk, it feeds on a variety of food, as small mammals, snakes, frogs, insects, birds, crawfish, centipedes, and even carrion. In regions where rattlesnakes abound it destroys considerable numbers of the reptiles. Although it feeds to a certain extent on poultry and birds, it is nevertheless entitled to general protection on account of the insistent warfare it wages against field mice and other small rodents and insects that are so destructive to young orchards, nursery stock, and farm produce. Out of 530 stomachs examined, 457, or 85 per cent, contained the remains of mammals, pests such as field mice, pine mice, rabbits, several species of ground squirrels, pocket gophers, and cotton rats, and only 62 contained the remains of poultry or game birds.

traveled overland by wagon, the original Coop & Lent's shows were the stellar attraction in the circus firmament and doubtless many of the older generation still remember when they were children lying awake all night in order to be up early enough to see the cavalcade come into town. Later on these exhibitions which had grown to bigger and bigger time separated into two distinct organizations, the Coop show going abroad where for many years it toured every civilized country on the globe.

Upon its return to the United States late in 1914, the old partnerships were re-formed by the descendants of the original, who have spent enormous sums in assembling an exhibition that will compare with the largest and best seen in America.

Many of the acts are entirely original in this country, having been gained during the travels of the Coop show in foreign lands.

MARY PICKFORD AT THE APOLLO TONIGHT

Photoplay Queen Seen Yesterday and Again Tonight at the Apollo.

Mary Pickford is again proving that her popularity is not based alone on the efforts of her press agents but upon her wonderful versatility in interpreting every conceivable character. "Poor Little Peppina" at the Apollo proves her equal to the most exacting of heroic parts. Her crowded houses yesterday were a further testimonial to her work.

In this picture there are many things new to the customary Pickford environment. Miss Pickford is lovely as the little peasant girl, and there have been few pictures in which she has been so charmingly and interestingly developed. Excellent character types and real Italians add a deal of color to the whole. Jack Pickford as the peasant Peppo, does not need the "Pickford" to distinguish him.

The story has to do with a vengeful butler and a kidnapped baby, the episodes which land Mary in an Italian peasant's home and set her on the highway of adventure. As she grows into a charming girlhood, she

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Yes, Angeline Is Learning New Things Every Day

BY F. LEIPZIGER

Use Coconut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain refined coconut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get multifid coconut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

Despair Gave Way To Great Victory

Fond du Lac Woman Relates Pleasant Experience That Has Been Her Lot.

No one can read about the recent experience of Mrs. L. Pohl, of 30 S. Boardman street, Fond du Lac, without feeling almost as happy over the outcome as the lady herself. Mrs. Pohl is employed by the Gurney Refrigerator Co., and has a host of friends in this city. This is the statement she made recently:

"I have just recovered from a severe case of stomach trouble after much suffering. I can't begin to describe all that I went through with during all that time. I will say that it was only recently that I found anything that would help me."

"I took many medicines without being helped. Sometimes I would be relieved for a little while but it was only temporary. Whenever I ate I would have pain in the pit of my stomach. I had difficulty in retaining food on my stomach. Anything sweet would not stay on my stomach more than half an hour at most. This upset condition of my stomach caused me to have the most severe blinding headaches."

"A few weeks ago I began to use TAN-LAC, the new medicine. I wish to say that it has helped me more than anything I have ever tried. I can now eat what I want without suffering. I have no trouble retaining food on my stomach. My appetite is better than I have known for several years. I have no more pains in my stomach nor do I have any more of those blinding headaches."

"TAN-LAC will do all that is claimed for it and I can heartily recommend it to all."

TAN-LAC may be obtained here at Smith's Drug Store. A TAN-LAC representative is on hand daily at this store. Stop in and hear all about the famous medicine. It may be what you need.

The City of Numbered Days

By FRANCIS LYNE

The tears had burned out of the steadfast eyes which were resting, with the shining soul looking out through them, upon the crimsoning snow peaks of the distant Timanyonias.

"How little you know the real love!" she said slowly. "It neither weighs nor measures, nor needs to; it writes its own law in the heart, and that law can make no compromise with evil. It has but one requirement—the best good of the beloved. If the way to that end lies through sacrifice—if it asks for the life itself—so let it be. If you knew this, Victor, you would know that I would gladly lose all—the mine, my father's chance of his reward for the years of toil, even my brother's better chance for reformation—and count myself happy in having found a love that was too great to do evil that good might come."

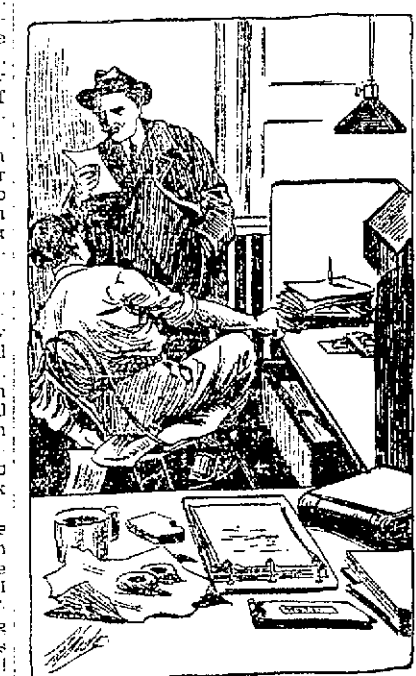

He got up stiffly and helped her to her feet and together they stood looking down upon the city of the plain, lying now under the curved, sunset shadow cast by the mighty, impending sweep of the great dam.

"I don't know," he said after a time. "Once, as I told you a few weeks ago, the best there was in me would have leaped up to climb the heights with you. But I've gone far since the going began. I am not sure that I could find my way back if I should try. Let's go down. I mustn't keep you out on the mountain after dark. I haven't happened to meet her, but I suppose there is a Mrs. Grundy, even in Gomorrah."

She acquiesced in silence and they made the descent of the steep trail and walked across in the growing dusk from the foot of Chigriro to the stuccoed villa in the suburb, misers of sneech, since there were no deeper depths to which the spoken word could plunge. But at the villa steps Brouillard took the girl in his arms and kissed her.

"Put me out of your mind and heart if you can," he said tenderly, repeating the words which he had once sent across the distances to her in another moment of despair, and before she could answer he was gone.

Monsieur Poudrecaux Bongras, ro-tund, snilling and roached and waxed to a broad burlesque of second-empire ferociousness, looked in vain among his dinner guests that evening for the chief of the reclamation service, and

"How is the Line Tonight, Pretty Clear?"

Brouillard's absence held a small disappointment for the Frenchman. Rumor, the rumor which was never quiet and which could never be traced conclusively to its source, was again busy with exciting hints of a new era of prosperity about to dawn, and Bongras had hoped to drop his own little plummet of inquiry into the reclamation service chief.

The chance did not materialize. The lights in a certain upper office in the Niquola building were still turned on long after M. Poudrecaux had given up the hope of the deep-sea sounding for that night. Some time after the lobby crowd had melted, and before the lower avenue had begun to order small-hour suppers of Bongras, the two high windows in the Niquola building went dark and a few minutes later the man who had spent half the night tramping the floor or sitting with his head in his hands at the desk in the upper room came out of the street archway and walked briskly to the telegraph office across the plaza.

"How is the line tonight, Sanford—pretty clear?" he asked of the night manager, killing time while the sleepy night receiving clerk was making his third attempt to count the words in the closely-written, two-page government cipher.

"Nothing doing; a little A. P. stuff drizzling in now and then," said the manager, adding: "But that's like the poor—always with us."

"All right; there is no particular rush about this matter of mine, just so it is sure to be in the secretary's hands at the opening of business in the morning. But be careful that it goes straight—you'd better have it checked back before it is put on the through wire from Denver."

"Sure, Mr. Brouillard. What you say in this little old shack goes as it lays. We'll look out and not bull your message. Good night."

CHAPTER XXI
An Evening Call

Notwithstanding the preliminary rumors which Bongras and many others had sought so anxiously to verify, the Mirapolitan awakening to a realization that once more the tide had turned to bring new billows of prosperity tumbling into the valley of the Niquola came with a sudden and triumphant shock.

The first of the quickening waves fell upon the government reservation. Between sunrise and nightfall, on a day when the cloud of depression had grown black with panic threatening, the apathy which had lately characterized the work on the great dam disappeared as if by magic. The city found its billboards posted with loud calls for labor; the idle mixers were put in commission; the quarries and crushers began to thunder again; and the stagings once more shook and trembled under the feet of a busy army of puddlers.

While the revival was as yet only in the embryonic period, fresh labor began to come in gangs and in carloads and presently by special trains. Swarming colonies of Greeks, Italians and Bulgarians were dumped upon the city through the gate of the railroad station, and once more Chigriro avenue at night became a cheerful midway answering to the speech of all nations.

Change, revivification, reanimation instantly became the new order of the day; and again Mirapolis flung itself joyously into the fray, reaping where it had not sown and sowing only where the quickest crop could be gathered. For now the dullness of the reapers saw that the government work was really the Mirapolitan breath of life. Neither the quickening of the gold dredges in the Quadajenal canals, the reopening of the Real Estate exchange nor the Buckskin company's sudden resumption of the profitless prospecting on Jack's mountain served to obscure the principal fact—that without the money the reclamation service was disbursing the new prosperity structure would collapse like a house of cards.

This new and never-mentioned conviction wrought an eager change in men and in methods. Credit vanished and spot cash was tacitly acknowledged to be the only way to do business in a live community. Fortunes changed hands swiftly, as before, but now there was little bargaining and, with hot haste for the foreword, little time for it. To the western motto of "Go to it and get the money" was added: "And don't come back without it." It was said with a laugh, but behind the laugh there was a menace.

Among the individual transformations wrought by the new conditions, the young chief of the reclamation service afforded the most striking example. From the morning when he had summarily canceled the lease for the offices in the Niquola building and had returned his headquarters to the old log buildings on the government reservation and thence had issued his first series of orders for the resumption of full-force work on the dam and canals, those who had not known him best discovered that they had not known him at all. Even to Griswold and the men of his staff he was curt, crisply mandatory, almost brutal. For one and all there was rarely anything beyond the shottlike sentence: "Drive it, men; drive it; that's what you're here for—drive it!"

The time he took to eat his hurried meals at Bongras' could be measured in minutes, and what hours he gave to sleep no man knew, since he was the last to leave the headquarters at night and the first on the work in the morning. Twice, after the renewed activities on the great wall had become a well-ordered race against time, and the concrete was pouring into the high forms in steady streams from the ranked batteries of mixers, Mr. Cortwright had sent for Brouillard, and on each occasion the messenger had gone back with the brief word: "Too busy during working hours." And when a third messenger came to inquire what Mr. Brouillard's working hours were, the equally blunt answer returned was: "All the time."

In the face of such discouragements Mr. Cortwright was constrained to pocket his dignity as mayor, as the potentate of the exchanges, and as the unquestionable master of the surly young industry captain who refused to come when he was called, and to go in person. Choosing the evening hour when he had been assured that he was likely to find Brouillard alone and at work, he crossed the boundaries of the sacred reservation and made his way to the door of the log-built mapping room.

"I came around to see what is eating you these days," was the pudgy tyrant's greeting for the young man sitting under the shaded desk lamp. "Why don't you drop in once in a while and give me the run of things?"

"I gave your clerk the reason," said Brouillard laconically. "I'm too busy."

"The devil you are!" snapped the great man, finding the only armchair in the room and dropping heavily into it.

"Since when?"

"Since the first time you sent for me—and before."

Mr. Cortwright recovered his working gentility only with a palpable effort.

"See here, Brouillard, you know you never make any money by being short with me. Let's drop it and get down to business. What I wanted to say is that you are overdoing it; you are putting on too much steam. You've brought the boom, all right, but at the pace you're setting it won't last long enough. Are you catching on?"

"Then I'll Take a Hand!" Snarled the Tyrant, at Bay.

"I'm listening," was the noncommittal reply.

"Well, enough's enough, and too much of a good thing scalds the box before you're ready to dress it and cut it up. It's all right for you to run men in here by the railroad and scatter 'em out over your scaffolding—the more the merrier, and it's good for the town—but you needn't sweat the last shovelful of hurry out of them the way you're doing. It won't do to get your job finished too soon."

"Before congress convenes, you mean?" suggested Brouillard.

"That's just what I mean. String it out. Make it last."

Brouillard sat back in his pivot chair and began to play with the paper-knife.

"And if I don't choose to 'string it out'—if I even confess that I am straining every nerve to do this thing that you don't want me to do—what then, Mr. Cortwright?"

The quiet retort jolted the stocky man in the armchair as if it had been a blow. But he recovered quickly.

"I've been looking for that," he said with a nervous winking of the little gray eyes. "You've no business being out of business, Brouillard. If you'd quit puddling sand and cement and little rocks together and strike your gait right in ten years you'd be the richest man this side of the mountains. I'll be open-handed with you: This time you've got us where we can't wiggle. We've got to have more time. How much is it going to cost us?"

Brouillard shook his head slowly. "Odd as it may seem to you, I'm out of your market this time, Mr. Cortwright—quite out of it."

"Oh, no, you're not. You've got property to sell—a good bit of it. We can turn it for you at a figure that will—"

"No; you are mistaken," was the quick reply. "I have no property in Mirapolis. I am merely a squatter on government land, like everyone else in the Niquola valley."

"For heaven's sake!" the promoter burst out. "What's got into you? Don't you go around trying to stand that corpse on its feet; it's a dead one, I tell you! The Coronada titles are all right!"

"There are no Coronada titles. You have known it all along, and I know it—now. I have it straight from the bureau of land statistics, in a letter from a man who knows. The nearest boundary of the old Spanish grant is Laigo peak, ten miles south of Chigriro. The department knows this and is prepared to prove it. And in the very beginning you and your associates were warned that you could not acquire homestead or other rights in the Niquola."

"Let it go!" snapped the gray-eyed king of the pack. "We've got to get out alive and we're going to get out alive. What's your price?"

"I have answered that question once, but I'll make it a little plainer if you wish. It is beyond your reach; if you should turn your money-coin into cash you couldn't pay it this time Mr. Cortwright."

"That's guff—boy-talk—play-ranting! You want something—is it that damned Massingale business again? I don't own the railroad, but if you think I do, I'll sign anything you want to write to the traffic people. Let Massingale sell his ore and get the money for it. He'll go gamble it as he did yours."

Dinner Stories

A new postoffice was established at a small village far out west and the office of postmaster was bestowed on a native of the soil.

After a while, complaints were made that no mail was sent out from the new office. So an inspector was sent to inquire into the matter. He asked the postmaster why no mail had been sent out.

The postmaster pointed to a big and nearly empty mail bag hanging up in a corner and said:

"Why, I ain't sent it out because

"Well, I Should Say 'Gets-It' DOES Work"

"Look a' There, If You Don't Think It's Just Wonderful for Corns!"

"Bless my stars, look at it! Land of the living! Why, just look at it! That corn came right off—just like peeling bananas. Put your finger on my toe, right there, don't be afraid—that's it—feel how smooth the skin is? Well, that's where the corn was. Well, that's all! That's the way 'Gets-It' works on all corns, every corn, every time. It's the new, simple way of curing corns. You'll say good-bye to all foolish contraptions like bandaging bandages, sticky tape, plaster, toe-cutting knives, and grave-diggers such as knives, razors and scissors. 'Gets-It' stops pain. Applied in 2 seconds. Never fails. Nothing to stick to, but of press on the corn.

"Did You Ever See the Like? No Wonder 'Gets-It' Is the Biggest Selling Corn Cure in the World!"

'Gets-It' is sold everywhere. No a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill. Sold in Janesville and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by Red Cross Pharmacy and McGee & Russ.

Suffered For Years

There are many people who will be interested in the experience of Mrs. Julia Byard, Fort Benton, Mont. She writes: "I suffered for years with gall-stones. A friend wrote me about Fruitola and Traxo. I started taking it and am completely cured now and feel better than I have felt for twenty years."

Mrs. Byard's testimony is similar to that of many who have given this remedy a chance to help them. Fruitola is a powerful lubricant for the intestinal organs, softening the hardened particles that cause so much suffering and expelling the congested waste in an easy, natural way. A single dose is usually sufficient to clearly indicate its efficacy. Traxo is a splendid tonic-alterative that acts on the liver and kidneys, stimulates the flow of gastric juices to aid digestion, and removes bile from the liver in the Pinus laboratories at Monticello, Ill., and arrangements have been made to supply them through representative druggists. In Janesville they can be obtained at J. P. Baker, 123 West Milwaukee St.

the bag ain't nowhere nigh full yet."

A prominent San Francisco clubman has a country home down at San Mateo, where most of the wealthy folks of the city live. Recently he had an automobile accident at a lonely spot on the road where he found it impossible to reach a telephone to notify his wife.

Now, it happened that he was happily married, very domesticated, and not accustomed to staying out at night. So at midnight his wife became very nervous. She dispatched the following telegram to him: "Your husband hasn't come home. Am worried. Is he spending the night with me?"

Soon after this her husband arrived home and explained the cause of his delay. While he was talking a boy brought in five answers to her telegram, all worded thus:

"Yes, Jack is spending the night with me."

"When I was a boy," remarked the head of the family, "a nickel looked as big as a quarter to me."

"Well, pop," said his son and heir, "a dollar bill looks as big as a five to me right now."

Success and Profit in Want Ads

No. 4 Several Want Ads in the Same Issue of the Paper Bring Greater Results!

If you are going to use the Want Ad columns, and really wish to reach several different classes, why not use several different classifications?

People read the special class of Want Ads that interest them. You would not advertise for Male Help under the "Female Help Wanted," nor would you advertise Machinery under "Business Opportunities." The following explain how one Want Ad may be rewritten so that it has many angles:

THE GENERAL WANT AD
SUITS FOR MEN AND WOMEN ON credit. No additional charge and no interest. Dress in style and pay as you can. Call at once at.....

THE SPECIAL APPEAL TO MEN
LOOK RIGHT WHEN YOU LOOK FOR work. If you do not appear prosperous, how do you expect employers to have confidence in you? Call and let us tell you what we can do in credit clothing for you. Come to.....

The same idea may be worked out for women, and it may be used in the Personal column. Thus, the various kinds of persons who should read it, actually see it!

The idea of the Want Ad is to carry your message to people. Every reader of this paper has something in common with the Want Ad columns. So long as you can profit by reaching all of them, place your Want Ad wherever it will attract attention and get business. Firms that follow this plan are uniformly prosperous, because Want Ads cost little, and reach many.

If you have something to sell, and reach all those who might buy, The Want Ad is a Partner That Does Not Need a Salary!

GOVERNMENT PLANS SAFETY FIRST CAR

Will Illustrate "Preparedness" by Novel Exhibits Now Being Prepared.

With the present interest that is being taken by the people in national preparedness, the exhibits of the two military branches of the federal government, the "Safety First" department, started from Washington Monday, May 1, on a tour of the country, promises to attract much popular attention. Both the navy department and the war department will have cars devoted exclusively to displays of apparatus and models of apparatus used by these departments. These will give the citizens of the country a glimpse of the rapid fire which is now being prepared to deal with emergencies that may arise. The navy department will show models of the great guns that are on the battleships and will have models of the navy to explain their workings. There will be a modern machine gun, similar to those now being used in the European war, and also a portable wireless outfit which will be carried with the car and will be in working order at all stopping places. Messages will be received and sent daily and the visitors will be permitted to witness the station under actual working conditions. The war department is preparing an equally interesting exhibit, but has not yet gone far enough with the apparatus to permit a description of the exhibits to be made.

The weather bureau, department of agriculture, is now installing a car which will set forth the prevailing weather conditions throughout the country, including the temperature, rainfall and snow conditions. The car will receive the forecasts from the Washington office every day and the map will be corrected accordingly. The powerful Arlington radio station, at Washington, twice daily sends out the weather forecast with special storm warnings, and arrangements are now being made to have the department wireless catch these reports and to be displayed on the traveling weather map. It is claimed by the weather bureau that the storm and flood warnings given out by the department have saved the lives of thousands of millions of dollars of property and thousands of human lives.

The great lesson of sanitation as a preventive of disease is being illustrated in many ways by the public health service. This service is the deadly enemy of the rat, which is considered one of the most prolific carriers of dread disease, and will show visitors how houses and stables can be built up as to exclude the plague rodents. It is said that the public health service is responsible for saving the country from an epidemic of yellow fever by reason of its heroic work in driving the rat out of New Orleans.

In addition to these displays, there will be exhibits of the life-saving apparatus of the bureau of mines department of the interior; the coast guard service, treasury department and of the forest service, department of agriculture; and also special exhibits of the home-making work of the reclamation service, the national park service, and the land office, all of the department of the interior.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, May 2.—What world's records Arlie Mucks will hang up in the discus throw in the next few years and of the coming Olympic games is a matter of interest to all concerned. This giant, weighing now close to 370 pounds, has again beat his own record, this time by a good margin, at the first of his series of meets at Pullaet, Wis., last week. The distance now held by him is 145 feet, eleven and one-half inches. Mucks' track establishment, having gained prominence later with a better mark. He not only beat the world's mark Saturday, but he took first in the shot put, throwing it for a distance of 43 feet, one and a half inches. This put was by four feet farther than his nearest competitor. Cornell staged the unexpected by capturing the title over the last of the Badger runners. Despite this fact, Wisconsin won the entire meet, in comparison to the number of tries, capturing 27 points. The one mile relay was won by Harvard in 1:19. Princeton, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin following up in order. Nine Badgers were in the meeting, taking four first places, a second, two thirds, and a fourth.

JANESVILLE BOY SHOWS SPEED ON CINDER TRACK; GETS PLACE IN CLASS MEET

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, May 2.—Russell G. Smiley of Janesville, freshman in the course in commerce at the University of Wisconsin, won second place in the 100 yard run last Saturday in connection with the interclass track meet at Camp Randall. Hardy of Chicago won first and O'Donnell of Racine was third. The time for the event was 20 minutes and ten seconds. Smiley has been working with the commercial and track team all year. His mile record in this half-mile was 1:19. The freshmen won the meet with a total of 36 points. The sophomores were second with 25 points and the seniors last with 10 points. No records were broken, the time in every event being below the standard.

Moses N. Frank, who has been a loyal supporter of baseball in Baltimore for many years has been elected president of the Baltimore International League club, Jack Dunn having decided that he will have his hands full looking after the playing end.

NATIONALS IN LEAD IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

Eddie Gharney Probably Dreaming of the World Series Money—Both Chicago Teams Idle.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Washington, D. C., May 2.—Washington went into the lead in the American league pennant race on Monday by defeating Boston, 5 to 3, while Detroit and New York were losing to Cleveland and Philadelphia respectively. Ruth was unsteady and passed by nine men. Boston hit Harper hard, but failed to make the hits count except in one inning. In the eighth, with the score 3 to 2 against Washington, Williams and Morgan, Leonard then went to the mound and Henry greeted him with a two-base hit, which cleared the bases.

CY YOUNG'S RECORD MAY ENDURE FOR ALL TIME

Cy Young's pitching record may endure for all time. Only one pitcher in the game today, Christy Mathewson, had a chance to eclipse it. But the sun seems to be setting on Matt's major league pitching life—and, wonderful as is his work, it cannot compare with that of the old war horse. Young survived the terrific pace of twenty-two campaigns. He quit the game along in 1910 or 1911, and retired to his farm after taking part in 319 combats. Of these he won 508, giving him a grand pitching average around .320 for the entire period.

At the end of the 1915 season Mathewson's record showed that over a stretch of sixteen years under the big canvas he had worked in 614 games—205 less than Young, figured in. To equal Young's record in games pitched, Mathewson must remain in the majors at least six years longer—a seeming impossibility.

Mathewson has won 358 and lost 185 of his games. The others did not figure in his won or lost column. Matt's grand average to date is .365. Even should he by some miracle remain in the major league spotlight until he has pitched more games than Young, it is beyond the range of probability that he can win 50 per cent of the remaining games. And that is just about what the weakening arm must accomplish to beat the record of Young.

When one compares Young's record with that of Mathewson and the other great pitchers of today, there comes the full knowledge of what an amazing feat was Old Cy—a hurrier whose like may never again illuminate—and glorify—the baseball world.

WINS MARATHON

Arthur Roth.

Arthur Roth of Dorchester, Mass., won the Boston A. A. marathon, making the distance from Ashland, Mass., to the Boston A. A. clubhouse in two hours, 27 minutes and 16 1/2 seconds. The spectacular finish was featured by a desperate spurt by Villa Kyronen of New York, who made an unsuccessful effort to overtake the leader.

BADGERS IN CELLAR BERTH OF BIG NINE BASEBALL LINE-UP

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, May 2.—Wisconsin is tied for the last position in the conference baseball line-up as the result of the second defeat at the hands of the Illinois at Urbana Saturday. The Suckers won 4 to 0. Pederson and McDonald being the pitchers. Wisconsin was secured swifts off Gunkel. Gunkel struck out eight men and Moon fanned 7. Moon being unable to hold the slugging Illinois men down to less than eight hits.

MORRIS MILLER

With the roster showing Hans Wagner of Carnegie Jimmy Smith of Greenfield, Al Mammox of Dorchester, Joe Schultz of Belzhoover and Otto Knabe of Carleton, the Fire club is taking a strong local tone through the presence of Pittsburgh and Greater Pittsburgh talent. The fight among the home boys for an infield position is an unusual feature. When Smith was injured, Schultz went into the lineup in spite of an injury, and now Knabe is signed to take the place of Schultz, with both Smith and Schultz likely to give him a battle for the job later on.

Complaints were made by Pittsburgh over the elevation of the Cardinals in Saint Louis and President Tener will order an investigation. All National League diamonds were supposed to be secured before the season opened, but Manager Huggins appears to have slipped something over. Perhaps it was to give the proper fall for water running off the new tarpaulin that Prexy Britton after losing enough to pay for a dozen tarpaulins through games postponed by wet grounds, decided to make an investment.

It seems that Portland was willing enough to take Pitcher Al Collamore, and that it was the pitcher himself who killed the deal. He objected to making the trip to the coast, so Cleveland let Toledo have him. When the Collamore deal fell through Manager McCredie decided to retain Pitcher Jimmy Clark. The Indian, Lou Smith, was let go.

The new ball park at Hopewell in the Virginia League is built on the site of an old battlefield. Along the outfield fence runs a line of breastworks built by General Grant when his army faced that of General Lee. This to the population has shown a bad habit of climbing on these old fortifications and looking over the fence, much to the detriment of the pay gate, so it is proposed to level the relic of war days. The Daringer baseball family, assembled at Bloomington in the three-league this year, Howard will manage the team and his brothers Rola and Cliff will be on the infield. Cliff was taken on after Topps could not see him, while Rola was secured after he was declared a free agent from Peoria that club having overlooked the little master of sending him a contract.

Pitcher Jack Warhop, formerly with the New York Yankees, who trained with the St. Louis Cardinals this spring but failed to show comeback qualities, has signed with the Salt Lake club. The statement from Salt Lake that Warhop "refused to sign" with the Cardinals, however, can be taken with a grain of salt.

Last winter when Oakland bought a batch of players from Milwaukee, the Coast league fans were promised great things. Now three of them are missing. Pitcher Tom Dougherty would not report, Joe Burg failed as an infielder, and Newt Randall, the veteran outfielder, has been released. Jay Barbeau, however, was hanging on at last accounts and delivering the goods.

Johnny Priest, who has been holding out on the Rochester club over a difference in salary, has been sold to Omaha in the Western league. Priest held out so long that Tommy Leah had no place for him when he did report.

Newer, Kelly, brother of George of the New York Giants, who has been working out with the Los Angeles team, has been shifted to Vancouver for development. Like Brother George, he is long and lean, but instead of first basing or playing the outfield he wants to be a pitcher.

President McCaffery of the Toronto club has notified Manager Joe Birmingham, so the story goes, that he does not approve of him taking on Pitcher Egan for development. Like Brother George, he is long and lean, but instead of first basing or playing the outfield he wants to be a pitcher.

MEN who appreciate Quality are endorsing W-B CUT Chewing—the long shred Real Tobacco Chew—as the chew that really satisfies. W-B CUT Chewing is real tobacco, always the same good quality and a small chew takes the place of the inconvenient big wad of the ordinary kind. Remember, too, there's less spitting and grinding with W-B CUT Chewing. Give it a quality test. "Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste."
